

PHUKET

A full-page photograph of a street corner in Phuket. On the left is a historic, two-story yellow building with a prominent clock tower. The clock tower has two visible clock faces and a small arched window below them. The building's facade is adorned with large, white-framed arched windows and doorways. To the right, a modern, multi-story white building with a glass-enclosed upper section rises into the sky. The street is paved with dark asphalt and features a red and white striped crosswalk. A yellow metal railing runs along the sidewalk. A street lamp stands in the foreground on the left. The sky is a clear, bright blue.
